CUNO MAY BREAK RELATIONS WITH THE FRENCH

WARDING WILL ASK AMERICAN PEOPLE FOR SUPPORT OF HIS PLAN TO ENTER LEAGUE COURT WHICH SENATE VETOED

Washington, March 5.—President Harding today asked the American people to support him in his effort to secure the entrance in the Permanent Court of International Justice.

In a letter to Lieutenant Governor Earl B. Blohm of Ohio in response to a resolution of the Ohio Assembly commending him on his stand for American participation in the Court the Executive indicated that during the recess of Congress he intends to attempt to sweep the American people overwhelmingly in favor of such a stand.

"It is inconceivable to me that the American people who have so long been devoted to this ideal should refuse their adherence now to such a problem as is represented by this tribunal," the President wrote.

CHANCELLOR MAY GO BEFORE REICHSTAG TO ASK AUTHORITY

Berlin, March 5.—Chancellor Cuno may ask permission of the Reichstag tomorrow to break diplomatic relations with France, a prominent Berlin newspaper declared today. Reports are gaining ground in diplomatic circles that the Chancellor will not content himself with a mere note of protest to France concerning the occupation of Mannheim, Darmstadt and other cities in Central Europe but will go further.

The occupation of Mannheim and Darmstadt have aroused the German people more than anything since the days of the war and the city of Berlin is seething with demonstrations against the French although there are many counter demonstrations by those opposed to a course that might lead to war. In the midst of all this excitement the great national fair has opened with an attendance of well over 10,000 and agitators may take advantage of this large crowd assembled to preach their doctrine of war.

GERMANY GAINING BY DEFEAT OF THE SHIPPING SUBSIDY

London, March 5.—Germany has already acquired a large part of the United States Shipping Board fleet, which is being sold as a result of President Harding's ship subsidy bill, the Daily Mail states today.

The newspaper gives as an instance the fact that the Harriman group has acquired for the North German Lloyd Company six combined passenger and cargo steamers, ranging from eight to ten thousand tons, destined for South American trade.

Hugo Stinnes has bought twelve vessels ranging from four to eight thousand tons, comprising the Shipping Board's Baltic and Mediterranean fleet.

CONSUL CHASE BETTER

Joseph R. Chase, brother of Hon. B. F. Chase, who is seriously ill in a hospital at Messina, Italy, was advised Saturday by wire from Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes at Washington, that Consul Chase is now improving and is being taken care of by an English nurse.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Bowes entertained at their home on Wednesday evening, playing 500.

DON'T LICK YOUR WIFE, OSCEOLAITE FINDS THAT IT IS A LONG LANE THAT HAS NO TURN; MEEK WIFE REVOLTS

There are times in some men's lives, no doubt, when it becomes really necessary for them to lick their wives, and, if they can do it, we say go to it, but it is much more of a dangerous proposition nowadays than it used to be. Some people won't agree with us on this proposition but we will have no trouble in proving it by Joseph Romanski.

Joe lives at Osceola and on Friday last when the wife of his bosom vexed him beyond endurance he slammed her in the eye with his strong right arm and otherwise kicked and cuffed her. Whatever and all he did made Mrs. Romanski so mad she hot-footed it to a nearby Justice of the Peace and had a warrant issued for Joe's arrest on a charge of assault and battery.

The warrant was placed in the hands of Constable Charley Crain and when he was to the Romanski home to arrest his man, Joe saw the constable first and beat it to the cellar. Secreting himself behind a couple of barrels in a back corner, Joe waited with "bated" breath for the officer to go his way without him. Crain followed Joe to the cellar and then followed the "ba t" of Joe's breath to his hiding place and yanked him out.

The wife heater was a bad picker of hiding places, because the barrels behind which he had taken refuge were seen by the constable to be full of mash, working away for dear life, while an energetic looking still was located nearby waiting for its supply of the mash when the latter was ready for business. Realizing that while the "search and seizure" of Gov. Pinchot's dog bill was not yet the "law of the land" Constable Crain recalled that Judge Bell had held in a recent Decatur township moonshining case that an officer was not supposed to be blind when he went upon a man's premises to arrest him for a crime, and promptly gathered in still and mash along with his prisoner.

Romanski was giving a hearing and sent to jail in default of $1,000 bail on a liquor law violation charge, while also being held to answer on the wife beating charge.

No, sir; it's a dangerous proposition nowadays to try to lick your wife. A lot of women are just like a mule, go along meek and quiet like for forty years just waiting for a good chance to soak you.

THE DOLLAR DAY LIST CONTINUES TO GROW LARGER

Every day in every way, this Dollar Day business seems to grow in interest and every year it is getting better and better. As proof of this Cune statement we would offer the evidence that at least fifty per cent more merchants are participating this year than ever before.

Another name was added this morning and all are now eagerly applying themselves to the task of arranging their stocks to suit the occasion. Thirty-seven of them. Think of it!

There will be thirty-seven business places making special offerings and the day will be one of continuous shopping. In fact a person will have to make nearly a whole day of it to get around. This great number of places makes it all the more necessary for the buyer to do some advance shopping by reading carefully the individual advertisements. It will also save the time of the clerks who would have to take a great deal of time answering your questions.

Look again at the list of participants. We are pleased to note that Kittelberger and Evans, successors to Overly Brothers, are among the list. These boys are starting off right and are bound to succeed.

London, March 5.—Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm is expecting an heir and the Kaiser wishes his wife to be removed to the Island of Corfu for the event, according to the daily Chronical correspondent today. Wilhelm, of course, could not be permitted to go to Corfu but he does not desire his child to be born in exile. Wilhelm, himself, is said to be in a joyous mood.

CLEARFIELD LOSES FINE CITIZEN IN DEATH OF SMITH

Allison O. Smith Always
In Forefront of Every Activity Looking to the Best for Humanity.

WAS A JUST JUDGE

Ex-Judge Allison O. Smith passed away at the Clearfield hospital about 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening, March 3d, 1923, in the 66th year of his age, as the result of diabetes from which he had been an uncomplicated sufferer the past ten or more years.

Allison O. Smith was born on a farm near Washington, Montour county, October 28, 1857, and is therefore 66 years of age. His father was Simpson Smith and his mother Charlotte Opp Smith, both natives of Lycoming county, and both descendants of pioneer settlers of Montgomery and Berks counties.

In 1887 the family moved to Watsonstown, Northumberland county, and continued farming. Here Allison O. began his education in the public schools and worked on the farm between-times. When old enough he attended Dewart Academy. Afterward he entered Bloomsburg State Normal and from there went to Pennsylvania State College in Centre county, from which institution he graduated in 1879, taking first honors in his class.

The same year he was elected principal of the Watsonstown High School and taught a very successful term, at the conclusion of which he registered in his home county as a student at law. Later the same year he went to Philadelphia, and entered the University of Pennsylvania Law School, registering as a student with Redding, Jones & Carson, of that city, of which firm the junior member later became Attorney General of the state under Gov. Pennepacker. He graduated from the University Law School in June, 1882, and the same month was admitted to practice law in the several courts of Philadelphia. Shortly afterwards he was admitted to practice in the courts of Northumberland county and in November the same year he came to Clearfield and was admitted to practice here at January court, 1883. He at once began active practice alone and so continued until he formed partnership with Thomas H. Murray in January, 1894.

Since coming to Clearfield Mr. Smith has filled many positions of honor and trust, besides practicing his profession, and in each he invariably did credit to himself and his friends, always faithful, honest, courteous and competent. He was attorney for Sheriff's Shaw and McCloskey; solicitor for the county in 1888-89; secretary of the Democratic committee, 1886 to 1889; county chairman in 1900; member of the school board. In 1903 he was elected President Judge of Clearfield county by a majority of 2,016 over the late ex-Judge Cyrus Gordon, serving in that position from Jan. 1, 1904, until Jan. 1, 1914. In all these positions, as lawyer, judge and citizen, he was always true to his conscience, his honor and himself, always standing fearlessly for the right no matter what the cost. No man in Clearfield stood higher in the estimation of his neighbors for honesty, integrity and true worth and no man who knew him but would trust him to the utmost in anything.

In October, 1888, he was united in marriage with Margaret Helen Wallace, youngest daughter of the late Senator William A. Wallace. To this

14 YEAR OLD LAD INGENIOUSLY WORKS HIS WAY FROM AN AUSTRIAN VILLAGE TO BOARDMAN, WHERE AN UNCLE IS LIVING

Vladimir Ponkey, now 14 years of age, and small for that age, came in contact with a lot of Americans during the world war, and though several thousand miles away from this country and without means of travel he decided that just as soon as the Fates would make it possible he would not only see America but would become a good American.

The lad's home was in Louve, Austria, where he lived with his father, his mother being dead. Being a bright, energetic lad he was given a place as messenger in the postoffice his duty being to handle special delivery mail. Being able to both talk and write Polish, Russian and German he was able to pick up odd pennies from time to time by reason of his accomplishments. Every cent he made he laid away waiting for the time when he would have funds enough to make his way to Danzig on the Baltic, where the ocean going steamers touched. About three months ago his hoarded wealth warranted the trip to Danzig and it was made. When he arrived at the seaport, a liner was just completing her loading preparatory to a start for the land of the boy's dream. Secreting himself one evening just before dusk on the tug boat which carried a harbor official to and from the ship in the stream for the final inspection and as the gang plank by which the officer descended was being hauled back to the deck of the steamer, young Ponkey hanging to a dangling rope like a monkey went up along and remaining on the under side of the plank until darkness ensued, he then slipped out of his hiding place and making his way down into the vessels hold quickly made friends with a Garman sailor. On account of his linguistic accomplishments, his boyish gentility and ready wit, the lad was soon the pet of the crew, and as he told them his family were passengers in the steamer had no difficulty in getting by with it and fed at the sailor's mess. He managed to escape detection until the twenty day trip ended at New York and then Uncle Sam's Argus-eyed immigration inspectors, looking for just such fellows as Vladimir, pounced upon him.

The boy was such a bright, good natured lad and played his cards so well that he was as successful in making friends with Uncle Sam's officials as he was with the sailors and soon had every fellow about Ellis Island working for him.

Vladimir has an uncle John Bardell a Boardman resident for the past seventeen years, and though he had never seen his uncle knew very well Uncle John would help him become an American. Uncle John was telegraphed the situation and took the matter up with his employer Col. Fred Kerr of Clearfield. Col. Kerr thought there was lots of room in this country for determined young Americans like Vladimir proposes to be and he at once got busy on the case and after a wait of two months and a half the gates of the promised land opened to young Ponkey and he was placed on a train at New York and headed for Boardman. He arrived here last Friday and as his uncle who had visited him at Ellis Island had not received the telegram sent him when the lad left New York he was not here when the train arrived. Having been supplied with a lunch by the American Welfare Association the lad made himself at home in the Pennsy station while waiting for his Uncle to arrive. When closing time up times arrived the boy had to leave the depot and in passing the Palace Hotel noticed the telephone on the desk and going into the office asked as best he could

"Assigned Car" Case, Of Great Importance Locally, Is Heard

The Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington on March 2d concluded its hearings in what is popularly known as the "Assigned Car" case. The investigation was undertaken at the instance of the Commission itself to consider the practicability of adopting rules for coal car distribution at bituminous coal mines throughout the country. The railroad proposed the adoption of rules continuing in force in periods of car shortage, distribution of coal cars for railroad fuel supply without regard to the rating of the mines. The proposed rules included cars for roads originating coal, and for foreign lines dependent on the former class for their fuel supply. They also included privately owned, or "individual" coal cars. Under the plan offered, coal mines retaining such classes of cars at the instance of a railroad, or an individual owner, have an advantage in car supply in periods of car shortage over mines not having nor taking such business.

A large body of coal operators throughout the United States, headed by the National Coal Association, opposed the rules. Their contention was that under the Transportation Act of 1920, and to avoid preferences and discriminations between the mines, coal cars, regardless of ownership or the purpose for which used, should be distributed in car shortage periods upon a basis of mine ratings; and that no mine should then receive a greater number of cars than its proportion of all the coal cars available, if all were regarded as pooled for distribution purposes.

Hearings were held at Washington in July, November and December, 1922, and testimony taken for almost four weeks. Part of the Pennsylvania operators opposed to the proposed rules collaborated with the National Coal Association, and those in the middle of the state presented their case through the Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers' Association of Altoona. Operators enjoying the benefit of special assignments or consignments of cars, either directly or indirectly co-operated with the rail-

PERHAPS DRINK IT

Liquor licenses and license courts appear to be a hard thing to get along without and just when we have about arrived at the conclusion they have taken their place on the musty pedestal of ancient history with the long extinct dodo bird, along comes an unlooked-for session or order which again restores them to their hitherto accustomed place in the sun regardless of the oft-expressed observation that they can "never come back."

At least that is the situation in Clearfield county, and while no word was heard from Judge Bell at the regularly appointed time for holding license court this year, and the dozen or more license applicants with the temerity to try it again, even though Judge Bell would grant no licenses last year, thought it was all over and done with regardless. However, all license applicants were given a new, even though painfully precarious lease on hope, once more when on Saturday Judge Bell placed the following order on record in Prothonotary Ralston's office:—

In the Court of Quarter Sessions of Clearfield. In re-License Applications. Under the law of Pennsylvania as it has stood for many years the Court has row power to pass on the necessity for brewers' licenses. The laws of the United States and of Pennsylvania both recognize the propriety of providing non-intoxicating beverages and we are not informed of any intention to change the law of the state relating to the brewing thereof. We have therefore no reason for not granting the license asked for by the DuBois Brewing Company, though we will add rule to revoke should the law relative thereto be changed by the Legislature. In private hearings it has been proven that this company is

SHERIFF LOWELL TO ENTERTAIN "KING" ROYALLY; MADE HIS ACQUAINTANCE VIA THE BOOTLEG TRAIL IN CASUAL MANNER

Alfred King, who claims to hail from Erie, Pa., may be a King in name and be of the opinion that a king could do no wrong, but he is over all that by this time as he rests his six feet of rawboned manhood on one of those new mattresses provided by the County Commissioners for the county jail just as soon as that Punsutawney groundhog predicted six weeks more of "weather."

In fact King looked like a dirty deuce in a new deck about 10:30 this morning when Sheriff Tom Lowell in traveling down the alley off of Market street toward Welch's livery stable, saw the Erie gentleman in the act of transferring a pint of whiskey from a grip he was carrying into the hands of a thirsty guy who hails from the Hyde City country. When the Lawrence township man recognized the Sheriff he lost all idea of buying liquor, his only concern appearing to be to get as far away from that immediate vicinity in the shortest time possible. Being thusly possessed he delayed not upon the order of his going, but went at once. And how he could and did run!

King attempted to bluff his way out of it but the Sheriff was not to be bamboozled and the bootlegger quickly learned that fact and submitted gracefully. When taken before District Attorney Arnold and the grip King carried was searched four other innocent-looking pints were found snugly encoined therein while a packet of letters also found therein showed the fellow had been operating in Johnsonburg, Ridgway and DuBois before coming to Clearfield and it is the opinion of the officers King is from around Johnsonburg and a little investigation as to his antecedents will be made before his case is disposed of.

He was held in $1,000 bail for court for violation of the liquor law.

Sheriff Lowell says he knows the fellow about to become a purchaser when he sees him, but does not know his name and is keeping a sharp lookout for him to round him up as a wit-

What The 67th Congress Did And Failed To Do

Last Minute Jam To Get Through Pet Measures---Enactment Of Budget System

HELJ MANY SESSIONS

Washington, March 3.—(United Press).—In the 67th congress, the house held four sessions, the senate five. These are as follows:

Senate met March 4, 1921 to March 15, to confirm President Harding's cabinet.

Congress met in first session April 11, adjourned November 22.

Second session began December 5, ended September 22, 1922.

Third session November 20 to December 2, 1922.

Fourth and final session December 1922 to March 4, 1923.

By LAWRENCE MARTIN

United Press Staff Correspondent
Washington, March 5.—(United Press).—The Sixty-Seventh Congress has written the final chapter of its legislative records.

As the time for its final adjournment drew near members of both houses were making frantic efforts to squeeze some pet bill through the last minute jam. Most of them were doomed.

The accomplishments of congress naturally fall under two headings—domestic and international. Under both headings a record of lasting importance was made:

Domestic Program

The outstanding domestic legislation of the 67th congress was the Fordney-McCumber tariff act. The House ways and means committee got to work on it before the congress assembled and it passed the House July 21, 1921. It was more than a year later on August 19, that it passed the senate. It took the place of the Democratic Underwood-Simmons law.

As the administration came into power on an economy platform, the enactment of the budget system of making government appropriations was generally regarded by Republicans as their next greatest achievement.

The soldier bonus bill also passed both houses, but President Harding vetoed it, on the ground that it made no provision for raising money to pay the bonus, and that the treasury was not able itself to find the money. Though the pro-bonus group was strong in congress, due partly to the influence of the 1922 election, insufficient votes to override the veto were available and the bonus failed.

The coal strike of 1922 caused enactment of two measures, one aimed at prevention of future strikes, the other to insure equitable distribution of fuel resources. The first was creation by the Doherty bill of a fact-finding fuel commission, to delve into the coal industry and bring up for congress facts upon which an industrial code for the coal industry might be based. The work of this commission is in process of performance, and a partial report has been made to President Harding. The other measure revived to a degree federal fuel control, by appointment of a federal fuel distributor, in charge of coal distribution.

Billions Spent

Three sets of appropriation bills were passed, involving billions of dollars for the upkeep of the government. These bills, the last of which were finally enacted in the closing days of the present session, will carry the government until June 30, 1924.

In the closing days of the congress there was also enacted a bill both domestic and international in its implications. This was the measure approving the refunding of the British war debt of $4,600,000,000.

Because of a filibuster in the senate, which will go down as one of the most remarkable in senatorial annals, the "pet measure" of the administration, the merchant marine or ship subsidy bill, failed of passage. The House passed it, but though administration leaders tried in every way to get it through the senate, a group of democrats and farm bloc publicans obstructed it to death.

Most filibusters in congress tie up the whole legislative program and prevent any business being done for the time being. The ship subsidy filibuster, however, did not delay any appropriation bills or seriously interfere with other legislation. It was conducted less by means of protracted speeches than by forcing other measures into places of precedence over the subsidy. President Harding pleaded hard for the subsidy, but his efforts were unavailing.

A senate filibuster also killed the Dyer anti-lynching bill. This filibuster was short but most cleverly handled. It evidenced considerable poker ability on the part of those responsible. They bluffed the senate into the belief that insistence on the Dyer bill would spell disaster, and the sponsors of the bill laid down their hands.

International Affairs

Having come into power in part, as they felt, on the issue of keeping the country out of the league of nations, the republicans negotiated a separate peace treaty with Germany. The senate ratified early in the present congress. It also added long dispute with Columbia growing out of the acquisition of land for the Panama canal, by ratifying a treaty providing for payment of $25,000,000 to Columbia.

In passing the naval appropriation bill in the first session, the Senate added an amendment by Senator Doherty, requesting President Harding to call an international conference on the limitation of armaments. This conference, now historic, resulted in several treaties, which were submitted to the senate on February 10, 1922, by President Harding. They were ratified without much difficulty, the four power Pacific treaty and the five power naval limitation treaty causing the greatest discussion. The last of the treaties was disposed of on March 30, 1922.

The Newberry Case

This congress also saw the official induction and the passing of Senator Truman H. Newberry of Michigan. For three years following his election in 1918, Newberry had been the central figure in courts and in the senate, of a unique election contest, growing out of the expenditure of money in his campaign for nomination and election. The U. S. supreme court had set aside his conviction on the ground that the law under which he was convicted was unconstitutional. A senate committee investigated, and finally the majority reported that Newberry was blameless and clearly entitled to his seat. A democratic minority held a contrary view, and the senate, after protracted fight, seated Newberry in January, 1922.

The case was made an issue in the 1922 election, and many senators felt its effects. Soon after the results of that election became apparent, Newberry, on November 19, 1922, resigned and went to Europe.

Death laid its hand heavily upon the 67th congress. Four senators and more than a score of House members died. The senators were Knox, Penrose and Crow of Pennsylvania and Watson of Georgia. The House members included James R. Mann of Illinois, for many years a conspicuous figure in the House.

In the next congress, fifteen senators who sat today in the upper house and a large number of House members will no longer be upon the rolls, having been defeated in the 1922 election, or having voluntarily retired.

"The House of Quality"

ODDS AND ENDS
AND THINGS

By J. D. G.

Much of the domestic unhappiness of the country could be put to sleep forever if husbands and wives would observe ten commandments laid down for them by Leonard McGee, attorney-in-chief of New York's Legal Aid Society, official of that organization think.

The commandments for wives, made public recently and following those for husbands after several weeks, are easy suggestions culled from Mr. McGee's fifteen years of experience with cases of divorce, separation and annulment coming before the society.

Here they are in a nutshell:
"Do not be extravagant."
"Keep your home clean."
"Do not permit your person to become unattractive."

"Do not resort to reasonable discipline of children by their father."

"Do not spend too much time with your mother."

"Do not accept advice from relatives and neighbors."

"Do not disparage your husband."

"Smile. Be attentive in little things."

"Be tactful and feminine."

"Do not receive attentions from other men."

"Simple enough for any woman to know ahead," Mr. McGee commented when called at his office.

The Ten For Men.

And for men, these gleaned likewise from experience:

"Be generous."

"Do not interfere in the management of domestic affairs."

"Be cheerful, even though sometimes it hurts."

"Be considerate."

"Make love to your wife; continue to be her sweetheart."

"Do not sulk."

"Establish your own home, remote from those of relatives."

"Do not keep a lodger."

"Cultivate neatness and personal cleanliness."

"Be kind and just to your children."

"They might help the divorce court decide up to it if given a general whipping."

Whipping, though may be cured by application of X-rays, in the opinion of Boston physicians. Dr. Henry L. Bowditch and Dr. Edwin T. Wyman have discovered that the disease which previously has baffled medical treatment, is susceptible to the X-ray.

Their experiments have not been advanced sufficiently to warrant announcement that a cure has been found, it was said, and details of the treatment are being withheld for the present, but it is planned to hold a clinic soon.

Intelligent tests given to 3,333 pupils in senior classes of high schools of dear old educated "Bawston" town, show that 44 per cent of the boys and nearly 60 per cent of the girls are poor college material, a commission on higher education reports.

It was found psychological ratings of girls were consistently lower than those of boys. The commission found, however, it is probable that more girls of a given mental ability will succeed in school and in college than will boys of the same ability, because the former are more serious in their studies.

A reduction totaling $657,381,862 has been made in the national debt in the last twelve months, according to an official statement of the Treasury Department dealing with public finances, at the opening of business February 1.

The gross debt, funded and floating on that date amounted to $22,731,162,375, as compared with a total of $23,388,544,237 on the corresponding day of 1922.

The total of curtailments of the debt for the last twelve months represents a payment in the principal of the national debt of approximately $6.20 on behalf of every resident of the United States. This is slightly less than one-sixth of the collections of revenue per capita during the same period. Approximately $38 for each resident of the country now is going into the government's pocketbook each year from tax collections and other sources of revenue.

President Harding says it will take twenty years to make this really a dry nation. Arthur Brisbane, himself somewhat of a dry advocate, offers the following comment on prohibition and its possible effect or result:

Dr. Leon Bernard, of France, guest of the Rockefeller's in America, marvels at our health work in this country, and declares the adoption of prohibition "marks us as a great people." That's encouraging, but of course it's all an experiment thus far. Nobody knows how much more or less efficient a white race will be after a few generations of cold water. We do know that some water-drinking races, like the hundreds of millions in India, have not been successful. A handful of beer-drinking Englishmen, thousands of miles away, govern them easily. But water may have nothing to do with that, it may be vegetarianism, or something else.

We know also that when Mohammed put all his people on the water wagon, they did wonders for a while, nearly conquered the whole earth. Then they stopped, and since then they haven't done anything, until the other day when Kemal Pasha surprised the Allies. But Kemal is only a recent Mohammedan convert, and perhaps he isn't a teetotaler.

Rheumatism

"Suffering has gone from your face, mother!"

S. S. S. is the Great Builder of Red Blood-Cells and Rheumatism Must Go! Just Try It!

"Rheumatism? Me? No, indeed. It's all gone, every bit of it! It's sunshine and joy for me now for the first time in years. I feel a wonderful glow again in the free motion I used to have when my days were younger. I look at my hands and think of the twists and swellings they used to have. I bend my way over to the floor. I haven't been able to do that in many years. I can thank S. S. S. for it all! So me it was a rising sun of joy and liberty. Brokers and dealers in misery do not close your eyes and think that health, free motion and strength are gone from you forever! It is not so. It is here and now for all of you. S. S. S. is waiting to help you. There is a reason why S. S. S. will help you. When you increase the number of your red-blood cells, the entire system undergoes a tremendous change. Everything depends on blood-strength. Blood which is minus sufficient red-cells leads to a long list of troubles. Rheumatism is one of them. S. S. S. is the great blood-cleaner, blood-builder, system strengthener, nerve invigorator. It stops skin eruptions, rashes, pimples, blackheads, acne, boils, eczema. It builds up run-down, tired men and women, beautifies complexion, makes the flesh firmer. Start S. S. S. today. It is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. The larger size bottle is the more economical."

GVERNOR OPPOSES BACKWARD STEPS IN PUBLIC SCHOOL

Harrisburg, March 5.—Governor E. H. B. today stated that he could not favor an abridgement of the Edwards Act that might result in any backward steps in the present school system.

The current conflict of opinion concerning the estimates of school needs in the next two years, which caused the Governor to criticize Superintendent of Public Instruction Thomas E. Hagan for failing promptly to report to him on increased payments made by the schools will not cause any essential reduction in state aid to school districts.

ADFORD CHILD SLAYER FINALLY SENT TO CHAIR

Lockview, Pa., March 5.—Floyd Smith, convicted of the murder of the three-week-old daughter of his wife, was in the electric chair this morning after having made many vain appeals for his life. Twice he made appeals for a new trial, his case was up before the Board of Pardons four times, and at times he was reprieved by the governor.

A crime was committed on April 1920, when the body of his illegitimate child was found under a tree. Smith explained that he intended to abandon the child, taking it to his arm; was attacked by a dog and caused him to fall and set its life. He left it where he

LOCK HAVEN FLOODED BY ICE JAM

The ice went out of the river here today night and Sunday morning and a five and one half foot flood doing damage whatever.

Lock Haven suffered its annual flood when a jam formed below the town and flooded the town to a depth of two and one-half ft. in the stores of Main street. The town was virtually cut off from the world last night and this morning, but the break in the jam caused the water to recede rapidly and all danger and damage is over once more.

WILLIAM MCCAULEY'S REMAINS FINALLY LOCATED

On February 26th last Mrs. Alice Rishell of South Fourth street, received a telegram from Mrs. Susan McAuley, of Portland, Oregon, notifying her of the death of Mrs. McCauley's husband, William McCauley, an uncle of Mrs. Rishell, in an institution near Philadelphia. Mrs. McCauley asked that Undertaker Fred B. Leavy be notified to have the remains brought to Clearfield and interred in Hillcrest cemetery.

Undertaker Leavy got in touch with the authorities at the institution and found that the body had been turned over to the State Anatomical Board and after much correspondence with Dr. A. Hewson, Secretary of the Board was finally able to secure that gentleman's consent to ship the body to Clearfield and it is expected the remains will arrive in Clearfield tomorrow or Wednesday.

roads, with a few exceptions. Union labor joined forces with the bituminous operators who were fighting the "assigned car" rules, and contended for a "square turn" among coal operators similar to the "square turn" among the men in the mines. Labor organizations offered testimony in support of their position.

The hearings were concluded last Friday after two days of oral argument before the entire Interstate Commerce Commission. The contending interests were represented at the final argument by the following participants: The railroads by R. V. Fletcher, Chicago, W. S. Bronson, Richmond, Va., and August C. Gutheim, Washington; the private car owners by James W. Carmalt, Washington; the coal operators opposing preferential car distribution by Ernest S. Ballard, Chicago, L. C. Boyle, Washington, A. M. Liveright, Clearfield, Pa., and R. W. Ropiquet, St. Louis; union labor by J. J. Kintner, Lock Haven, Pa. At the conclusion of argument the Commission took the case under advisement.

TRINITY CHURCH EVENTS

Yesterday was a goodly day throughout for the people that make Trinity their church home. Bible school had an attendance of 410, with an offering of $186.88, which closed out the Missionary year. The address of Superintendent Powell on Korea and Dr. Henry Gearhart Appenzeller, the founder of that developing work, who was a classmate of Trinity's pastor, was inspiring.

The morning sermon was an exposition of John 14: 1, which many heard. Two persons were admitted to membership. The evening discourse was a study of Zachariah, who was presented in far different analysis of character and conduct from the traditional view. He was portrayed as a very big man despite the smallness of his stature. Strangers were noted from distant places in and beyond the state, in every service.

Excellent music was enjoyed by the congregation. Chorus and individual parts were helpfully sung.

This week's events: Wednesday evening's midweek meeting, followed by adjourned quarterly conference, special matters,—report on finances completing list of officers and Committees, selection of representative to Boy's Conference and County Federation of Churches. Thursday evening, parsonage, Woman's Foreign auxiliary Miss Clara Shaw and her group in charge. Next Sunday Communion with baptism, reception of members. A preaching Sunday, 18, pastor at Conference.

Curwensville's Own Column

An exceedingly sad and distressing accident occurred at the Danver col mine, near Grampian, last Friday afternoon, by which Rollie Shaffer, a miner, lost his life. Mr. Shaffer was an inexperienced miner and had only worked in the bank about three days. His death was instantaneous, a large rock from the roof falling on him, crushing the body down over a car rim and breaking his neck. Other cuts and lacerations were also found on the body. Funeral Director Duverspike brought the mangled remains to his undertaking rooms and prepared them for burial. He was a son of Edward Shaffer, and aged about 32 years, and is survived by one sister and three brothers, besides the father, who was summoned from Loraine, Ohio, and immediately made the proper arrangements for the funeral. The body was taken to a cemetery near Troutville today and interred in a plot alongside that of his mother, who preceded him a number of years ago. Deceased was a veteran of the world war, and had been severely wounded by an iron pin or bar shot through his leg, causing him to walk a trifle lame since the time of the wound. Rollie Shaffer was well and favorably known to many Curwensville people as an honest and exemplary young man. By his industry and frugality, he had succeeded in accumulating a large sum of money, and it is said that almost a thousand dollars was found in his clothing at the time of

Mrs. Lex P. Caldwell died at her home on Bloomingtown avenue, South Side, Saturday evening, after an illness lasting practically since February 22nd, at which time a little daughter was born. Many of her neighbors and friends did not know she was really ill and the announcement of her death on Sunday morning came as a shock to them. Deceased's maiden name was Mary Elizabeth Palmer, and she was born in London, England, November 20th, 1872. She was united in matrimony to Lex P. Caldwell, youngest son of the late Isaac Caldwell, September 8th, 1896. During the year 1908 the young couple came to America and located in the town of Wayne, Illinois, where they resided until September, 1922, when they came to Curwensville. Mr. Caldwell's old home. Those surviving her are the husband, Sarah, a daughter eight years of age, Lloyd George, a son of tender years, and a daughter less than one month old. The funeral will be held from the home on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. J. C. Collins officiating. Mrs. Caldwell had been a member of the Methodist church in England since early childhood. Of her immediate family she is the last.

It is talked around that a large store building will be erected on the open piece of ground between the rear of the bank and the milk depot building, fronting on South Thompson street.

The last Communion services of the conference year were held in the Methodist church yesterday with an unusual large attendance. It is figured quite largely by prominent church officials that Rev. Dr. Collins will be asked by the presiding bishop to be returned to the Curwensville church for another year.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITHOUT the blister. You just apply it with the fingers. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then comes a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frost-bitten feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu." 35c and 65c, jars and tubes.

You will be amazed to see how the use of "Bull" Durham will outdown the cost of your smoking.

How is it possible to give you quality at the low cost of 10 cents for 50 cigarettes?

Here's one reason: The government tax alone on 50 machine-made cigarettes is 15 cents—5 CENTS MORE THAN THE COST OF 50 "BULL" DURHAM CIGARETTES TO YOU!

The average smoker saves $1 to $1.50 a week by "rolling his own" from "Bull"—or from $52 to $78 a year. This makes quite a Christmas fund—or pays for a fine trip.

3 KEYSTONE STATE MEN CALLED TO HIGH DIPLOMATIC POSTS

Cyrus Woods Is Moved
from Spain to Japan,
Moore to Spain and I.
B. Laughlin to Greece.

ALL ARE ABLE MEN

Washington, March 3.—Cyrus E. Woods, of Pennsylvania, now ambassador to Spain, was nominated by President Harding today to be ambassador to Japan, succeeding Charles B. Warren, who recently resigned.

Alexander P. Moore, Pittsburgh publisher, was nominated to be ambassador to Spain to succeed Mr. Woods.

Irwin B. Laughlin, of Pittsburgh, is to be appointed minister to Greece if the United States recognizes the present government.

It was announced yesterday at the White House that an inquiry had gone forward to Tokio regarding the acceptability of the man selected to take the place of Ambassador Warren. It was indicated today, however, that a reply had not been received.

Mr. Woods has been ambassador at Madrid since 1921, he resigned as secretary of state of Pennsylvania to take the post. Some years before he had served as minister to Portugal.

The selection of Mr. Moore by the president was a personal matter, Mr. Moore and his wife, the late Lilian Russell, were close friends of President and Mrs. Harding.

The endorsement of the Pennsylvania senators was not sought in Mr. Moore's behalf, nor had he been recommended by them. Mr. Moore has been very well known in official circles here ever since the beginning of the present administration. He has never held public office, nor was it supposed that he desired it. Recently, however, his newspaper in Pittsburgh was sold to a combination of other newspapers and immediately discontinued. This left Mr. Moore at liberty.

It was recently announced that Mr. Moore would make an extended tour of Europe with Senator Johnson, of California, but his assumption of diplomatic duties will probably interfere with that program.

Mr. Woods was a very close friend of the late Senators Penrose and Knox, and has been prominent in Pennsylvania politics for a number of years. At one time he was minister to Portugal.

CUNO MAY BREAK RELATIONS WITH THE FRENCH

WARDING WILL ASK AMERICAN PEOPLE FOR SUPPORT OF HIS PLAN TO ENTER LEAGUE COURT WHICH SENATE VETOED

Washington, March 5.—President Harding today asked the American people to support him in his effort to secure the entrance in the Permanent Court of International Justice.

In a letter to Lieutenant Governor Earl B. Blom of Ohio in response to a resolution of the Ohio Assembly commending him on his stand for American participation in the Court the Executive indicated that during the recess of Congress he intends to attempt to sweep the American people overwhelmingly in favor of such a stand.

"It is inconceivable to me that the American people who have so long been devoted to this ideal should refuse their adherence now to such a problem as is represented by this tribunal," the President wrote.

THE DOLLAR DAY LIST CONTINUES TO GROW LARGER

Every day in every way, this Dollar Day business seems to grow in interest and every year it is getting better and better. As proof of this Cune statement we would offer the evidence that at least fifty per cent more merchants are participating this year than ever before.

Another name was added this morning and all are now eagerly applying themselves to the task of arranging their stocks to suit the occasion. Thirty-seven of them. Think of it!

There will be thirty-seven business places making special offerings and the day will be one of continuous shopping. In fact a person will have to make nearly a whole day of it to get around. This great number of places makes it all the more necessary for the buyer to do some advance shopping by reading carefully the individual advertisements. It will also save the time of the clerks who would have to take a great deal of time answering your questions.

CLEARFIELD LOSES FINE CITIZEN IN DEATH OF SMITH

Allison O. Smith Always

Activity Looking to the Best for Humanity.

WAS A JUST JUDGE

Ex-Judge Allison O. Smith passed away at the Clearfield hospital about 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening, March 3d, 1923, in the 66th year of his age, as the result of diabetes from which he had been an uncomplicated sufferer for the past ten or more years.

Allison O. Smith was born on a farm near Washington, Montour county, October 28, 1857, and is therefore 66 years of age. His father was Simpson Smith and his mother Charlotte Opp Smith, both natives of Lycoming county, and both descendants of pioneer settlers of Montgomery and Berks counties.

In 1887 the family moved to Watsonstown, Northumberland county, and continued farming. Here Allison O. began his education in the public schools and worked on the farm between times. When old enough he attended Dewart Academy. Afterward he entered Bloomsburg State Normal and from there went to Pennsylvania State College in Centre county, from which institution he graduated in 1879, taking first honors in his class.

The same year he was elected principal of the Watsonstown High School and taught a very successful term, at the conclusion of which he registered in his home county as a student at law. Later the same year he went to Philadelphia, and entered the University of Pennsylvania Law School, registering as a student with Redding Jones & Carson, of that city, of which firm the junior member later became Attorney General of the state under Gov. Pennepacker. He graduated from the University Law School in June, 1882, and the same month was admitted to practice law in the several courts of Philadelphia. Shortly afterwards he was admitted to practice in the courts of Northumberland county and in November the same year he came to Clearfield and was admitted to practice here at January court, 1883. He at once began active practice alone and so continued until he formed partnership with Thomas H. Murray in January, 1894.

Since coming to Clearfield Mr. Smith has filled many positions of honor and trust, besides practicing his profession, and in each he invariably did credit to himself and his friends, always faithful, honest, courteous and competent. He was attorney for Sheriff's Shaw and McCloskey; solicitor for the county in 1888-89; secretary of the Democratic committee, 1886 to 1889; county chairman in 1900; member of the school board. In 1903 he was elected President Judge of Clearfield county by a majority of 2,016 over the late ex-Judge Cyrus Gordon, serving in that position from Jan. 1, 1904, until Jan. 1, 1914. In all these positions, as lawyer, judge and citizen, he was always true to his conscience, his honor and himself, always standing fearlessly for the right no matter what the cost. No man in Clearfield stood higher in the estimation of his neighbors for honesty, integrity and true worth and no man who knew him but would trust him to the utmost in anything.

In October, 1888, he was united in marriage with Margaret Helen Wallace, youngest daughter of the late Senator William A. Wallace. To this

14 YEAR OLD LAD INGENIOUSLY WORKS HIS WAY FROM AN AUSTRIAN VILLAGE TO BOARDMAN, WHERE AN UNCLE IS LIVING

Vladimir Ponkey, now 14 years of age, and small for that age, came in contact with a lot of Americans during the world war, and though several thousand miles away from this country and without means of travel he decided that just as soon as the Fates would make it possible he would not only see America but would become a good American.

The lad's home was in Louve, Austria, where he lived with his father, his mother being dead. Being a bright, energetic lad he was given a place as messenger in the postoffice his duty being to handle special delivery mail. Being able to both talk and write Polish, Russian and German he was able to pick up odd pennies from time to time by reason of his accomplishments. Every cent he made he laid away waiting for the time when he would have funds enough to make his way to Danzig on the Baltic, where the ocean going steamers touched. About three months ago his hoarded wealth warranted the trip to Danzig and it was made. When he arrived at the seaport, a liner was just completing her loading preparatory to a start for the land of the boy's dream. Secretly he slipped out of the ship before dusk on the tug boat which carried a harbor official to and from the ship in the stream for the final inspection and as the gang plank by which the officer descended was being hauled back to the deck of the steamer, young Ponkey hanging to a dangling rope like a monkey went up along and remaining on the under side of the plank until darkness ensued, he then slipped out of his hiding place and making his way down into the vessel's hold quickly made friends with a Garman sailor. On account of his linguistic accomplishments, his boyish gentility and ready wit, the lad was soon the pet of the crew, and as he told them his family were passengers in the steamer had no difficulty in getting by with it and fed at the sailor's mess. He managed to escape detection until the twenty day trip ended at New York and then Uncle Sam's Argus-eyed immigration inspectors, looking for just such fellows as Vladimir, pounced upon him.

The boy was such a bright, good natured lad and played his cards so well that he was as successful in making friends with Uncle Sam's officials as he was with the sailors and soon had every fellow about Ellis Island working for him.

Vladimir has an uncle John Bardell a Boardman resident for the past seventeen years, and though he had never seen his uncle knew very well Uncle John would help him become an American. Uncle John was telegraphed the situation and took the matter up with his employer Col. Fred Kerr of Clearfield. Col. Kerr thought there was lots of room in this country for determined young Americans like Vladimir proposes to be and he at once got busy on the case and after a wait of two months and a half the gates of the promised land opened to young Ponkey and he was placed on a train at New York and headed for Boardman. He arrived here last Friday and as his uncle who had visited him at Ellis Island had not received the telegram sent him when the lad left New York he was not here when the train arrived. Having been supplied with a lunch by the American Welfare Association the lad made himself at home in the Pennsy station while waiting for his Uncle to arrive. When closing time up times arrived the boy had to leave the depot and in passing the Palace Hotel noticed the telephone on the desk and going into the office asked as best he could

"Assigned Car" Case, Of Great Importance Locally, Is Heard

The Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington on March 2d concluded its hearings in what is popularly known as the "Assigned Car" case. The investigation was undertaken at the instance of the Commission itself to consider the practicability of adopting rules for coal car distribution at bituminous coal mines throughout the country. The railroad proposed the adoption of rules continuing in force in periods of car shortage, distribution of coal cars for railroad fuel supply without regard to the rating of the mines. The proposed rules included cars for roads originating coal, and for foreign lines dependent on the former class for their fuel supply. They also included privately owned, or "individual" coal cars. Under the plan offered, coal mines retaining such classes of cars at the instance of a railroad, or an individual owner, have an advantage in car supply in periods of car shortage over mines not having nor taking such business.

A large body of coal operators throughout the United States, headed by the National Coal Association, opposed the rules. Their contention was that under the Transportation Act of 1920, and to avoid preferences and discriminations between the mines, coal cars, regardless of ownership or the purpose for which used, should be distributed in car shortage periods upon a basis of mine ratings; and that no mine should then receive a greater number of cars than its proportion of all the coal cars available, if all were regarded as pooled for distribution purposes.

Hearings were held at Washington in July, November and December, 1922, and testimony taken for almost four weeks. Part of the Pennsylvania operators opposed to the proposed rules collaborated with the National Coal Association, and those in the middle of the state presented their case through the Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers' Association of Altoona. Operators enjoying the benefit of special assignments or consignments of cars, either directly or indirectly co-operated with the rail-

DUBOIS BREWERY IS GRANTED LICENSE TO MANUFACTURE

Many Questions Arise
As to What Brewers

PERHAPS DRINK IT

Liquor licenses and license courts appear to be a hard thing to get along without and just when we have about arrived at the conclusion they have taken their place on the musty pedestal of ancient history with the long extinct dodo bird, along comes an unlooked-for session or order which again restores them to their hitherto accustomed place in the sun regardless of the oft-expressed observation that they can "never come back."

At least that is the situation in Clearfield county, and while no word was heard from Judge Bell at the regularly appointed time for holding license court this year, and the dozen or more license applicants with the temerity to try it again, even though Judge Bell would grant no licenses last year, thought it was all over and done with regardless. However, all license applicants were given a new, even though painfully precarious lease on hope, once more when on Saturday Judge Bell placed the following order on record in Prothonotary Ralston's office:—

In the Court of Quarter Sessions of Clearfield. In re-License Applications. Under the law of Pennsylvania as it has stood for many years the Court has row power to pass on the necessity for brewers' licenses. The laws of the United States and of Pennsylvania both recognize the propriety of providing non-intoxicating beverages and we are not informed of any intention to change the law of the state relating to the brewing thereof. We have therefore no reason for not granting the license asked for by the DuBois Brewing Company, though we will add rule to revoke should the law relative thereto be changed by the Legislature. In private hearings it has been proven that this company is

Berlin, March 5.—Chancellor Cuno may ask permission of the Reichstag tomorrow to break diplomatic relations with France, a prominent Berlin newspaper declared today. Reports are gaining ground in diplomatic circles that the Chancellor will not content himself with a mere note of protest to France concerning the occupation of Mannheim, Darmstadt and other cities in Central Europe but will go further.

The occupation of Mannheim and Darmstadt have aroused the German people more than anything since the days of the war and the city of Berlin is seething with demonstrations against the French although there are many counter demonstrations by those opposed to a course that might lead to war. In the midst of all this excitement the great national fair has opened with an attendance of well over 10,000 and agitators may take advantage of this large crowd assembled to preach their doctrine of war.

Dr. and Mrs. G. J. Brett have returned home from the Central Pennsylvania Dental Society Convention at Johnstown and visiting friends in Pittsburgh, Pa.

GERMANY GAINING BY DEFEAT OF THE SHIPPING SUBSIDY

London, March 5.—Germany has already acquired a large part of the United States Shipping Board fleet, which is being sold as a result of President Harding's ship subsidy bill, the Daily Mail states today.

The newspaper gives as an instance the fact that the Harriman group has acquired for the North German Lloyd Company six combined passenger and cargo steamers, ranging from eight to ten thousand tons, destined for South American trade.

Hugo Stinnes has bought twelve vessels ranging from four to eight thousand tons, comprising the Shipping Board's Baltic and Mediterranean fleet.

CONSUL CHASE BETTER

Joseph R. Chase, brother of Hon. B. F. Chase, who is seriously ill in a hospital at Messina, Italy, was advised Saturday by wire from Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes at Washington, that Consul Chase is now improving and is being taken care of by an English nurse.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Bowes entertained at their home on Wednesday evening, playing 500.

DON'T LICK YOUR WIFE; OSCEOLAITE FINDS THAT IT IS A LONG LANE THAT HAS NO TURN; MEEK WIFE REVOLTS

There are times in some men's lives, no doubt, when it becomes really necessary for them to lick their wives, and, if they can do it, we say go to it, but it is much more of a dangerous proposition nowadays than it used to be. Some people won't agree with us on this proposition but we will have no trouble in proving it by Joseph Romanski.

Joe lives at Osceola and on Friday last when the wife of his bosom vexed him beyond endurance he slammed her in the eye with his strong right arm and otherwise kicked and cuffed her. Whatever and all he did made Mrs. Romanski so mad she hot-footed it to a nearby Justice of the Peace and had a warrant issued for Joe's arrest on a charge of assault and battery.

The warrant was placed in the hands of Constable Charley Crain and when he was to the Romanski home to arrest his man, Joe saw the constable first and beat it to the cellar. Secreting himself behind a couple of barrels in a back corner, Joe waited with "bated" breath for the officer to go his way without him. Crain followed Joe to the cellar and then followed the "ba t" of Joe's breath to his hiding place and yanked him out.

The wife heater was a bad picker of hiding places, because the barrels behind which he had taken refuge were seen by the constable to be full of mash, working away for dear life, while an energetic looking still was located nearby waiting for its supply of the mash when the latter was ready for business. Realizing that while the "search and seizure" of Gov. Pinchot's dog bill was not yet the "law of the land" Constable Crain recalled that Judge Bell had held in a recent Decatur township moonshining case that an officer was not supposed to be blind when he went upon a man's premises to arrest him for a crime, and promptly gathered in still and mash along with his prisoner.

Romanski was giving a hearing and sent to jail in default of $1,000 bail on a liquor law violation charge, while also being held to answer on the wife beating charge.

No, sir; it's a dangerous proposition nowadays to try to lick your wife. A lot of women are just like a mule, go along meek and quiet like for forty years just waiting for a good chance to soak you.

SHERIFF LOWELL TO ENTERTAIN "KING" ROYALLY; MADE HIS ACQUAINTANCE VIA THE BOOTLEG TRAIL IN CASUAL MANNER

Alfred King, who claims to hail from Erie, Pa., may be a King in name and be of the opinion that a king could do no wrong, but he is over all that by this time as he rests his six feet of rawboned manhood on one of those new mattresses provided by the County Commissioners for the county jail just as soon as that Punsutawney groundhog predicted six weeks more of "weather."

In fact King looked like a dirty deuce in a new deck about 10:30 this morning when Sheriff Tom Lowell in traveling down the alley off of Market street toward Welch's livery stable, saw the Erie gentleman in the act of transferring a pint of whiskey from a grip he was carrying into the hands of a thirsty guy who hails from the Hyde City country. When the Lawrence township man recognized the Sheriff he lost all idea of buying liquor, his only concern appearing to be to get as far away from that immediate vicinity in the shortest time possible. Being thusly possessed he delayed not upon the order of his going, but went at once. And how he could and did run! King attempted to bluff his way out of it but the Sheriff was not to be bamboozled and the bootlegger quickly learned that fact and submitted gracefully. When taken before District Attorney Arnold and the grip King carried was searched four other innocent-looking pints were found snugly encoined therein while a packet of letters also found therein showed the fellow had been operating in Johnsonburg, Ridgway and DuBois before coming to Clearfield and it is the opinion of the officers King is from around Johnsonburg and a little investigation as to his antecedents will be made before his case is disposed of.

He was held in $1,000 bail for court for violation of the liquor law. Sheriff Lowell says he knows the fellow about to become a purchaser when he sees him, but does not know his name and is keeping a sharp lookout for him to round him up as a wit-

United Press Staff Correspondent
Washington, March 5.—(United Press).—The Sixty-Seventh Congress has written the final chapter of its legislative records.

As the time for its final adjournment drew near members of both houses were making frantic efforts to squeeze some pet bill through the last minute jam. Most of them were doomed.

The accomplishments of congress naturally fall under two headings—domestic and international. Under both headings a record of lasting importance was made:

Domestic Program

The outstanding domestic legislation of the 67th congress was the Fordney-McCumber tariff act. The House ways and means committee got to work on it before the congress assembled and it passed the House July 21, 1921. It was more than a year later on August 19, that it passed the senate. It took the place of the Democratic Underwood-Simmons law.

As the administration came into power on an economy platform, the enactment of the budget system of making government appropriations was generally regarded by Republicans as their next greatest achievement.

The soldier bonus bill also passed both houses, but President Harding vetoed it, on the ground that it made no provision for raising money to pay the bonus, and that the treasury was not able itself to find the money. Though the pro-bonus group was strong in congress, due partly to the influence of the 1922 election, insufficient votes to override the veto were available and the bonus failed. The coal strike of 1922 caused enactment of two measures, one aimed at prevention of future strikes, the other to insure equitable distribution of fuel resources. The first was creation by the Doherty bill of a fact-finding fuel commission, to delve into the coal industry and bring up for congress facts upon which an industrial code for the coal industry might be based. The work of this commission is in process of performance, and a partial report has been made to President Harding. The other measure revived to a degree federal fuel control, by appointment of a federal fuel distributor, in charge of coal distribution.

Billions Spent

Three sets of appropriation bills were passed, involving billions of dollars for the upkeep of the government. These bills, the last of which were finally enacted in the closing days of the present session, will carry the government until June 30, 1924.

In the closing days of the congress there was also enacted a bill both domestic and international in its implications. This was the measure approving the refunding of the British war debt of $4,600,000,000.

Because of a filibuster in the senate, which will go down as one of the most remarkable in senatorial annals, the "pet measure" of the administration, the merchant marine or ship subsidy bill, failed of passage. The House passed it, but though administration leaders tried in every way to get it through the senate, a group of democrats and farm bloc Republicans obstructed it to death.

Most filibusters in congress tie up the whole legislative program and prevent any business being done for the time being. The ship subsidy filibuster, however, did not delay any appropriation bills or seriously interfere with other legislation. It was conducted less by means of protracted speeches than by forcing other measures into places of precedence over the subsidy. President Harding pleaded hard for the subsidy, but his efforts were unavailing.

A senate filibuster also killed the Dyer anti-lynching bill. This filibuster was short but most cleverly handled. It evidenced considerable poker ability on the part of those responsible. They bluffed the senate into the belief that insistence on the Dyer bill would spell disaster, and the sponsors of the bill laid down their hands.

International Affairs

Having come into power in part, as they felt, on the issue of keeping the country out of the league of nations, the republicans negotiated a separate peace treaty with Germany. The senate ratified early in the present congress. It also added long dispute with Columbia growing out of the acquisition of land for the Panama canal, by ratifying a treaty providing for payment of $25,000,000 to Columbia.

In passing the naval appropriation bill in the first session, the Senate added an amendment by Senator Doherty, requesting President Harding to call an international conference on the limitation of armaments. This conference, now historic, resulted in several treaties, which were submitted to the senate on February 10, 1922, by President Harding. They were ratified without much difficulty, the four power Pacific treaty and the five power naval limitation treaty causing the greatest discussion. The last of the treaties was disposed of on March 30, 1922.

The Newberry Case

This congress also saw the official induction and the passing of Senator Truman H. Newberry of Michigan. For three years following his election in 1918, Newberry had been the central figure in courts and in the senate, of a unique election contest, growing out of the expenditure of money in his campaign for nomination and election. The U. S. supreme court had set aside his conviction on the ground that the law under which he was convicted was unconstitutional. A senate committee investigated, and finally the majority reported that Newberry was blameless and clearly entitled to his seat. A democratic minority held a contrary view, and the senate, after protracted fight, seated Newberry in January, 1922.

The case was made an issue in the 1922 election, and many senators felt its effects. Soon after the results of that election became apparent, Newberry, on November 19, 1922, resigned and went to Europe.

Death laid its hand heavily upon the 67th congress. Four senators and more than a score of House members died. The senators were Knox, Penrose and Crow of Pennsylvania and Watson of Georgia. The House members included James R. Mann of Illinois, for many years a conspicuous figure in the House.

In the next congress, fifteen senators who sat today in the upper house and a large number of House members will no longer be upon the rolls, having been defeated in the 1922 election, or having voluntarily retired.

be granted, restricted to the product of the DuBois Brewing Company and subject to rule to revoke.

The other application filed involve matters which are likely to be settled by the Legislature now in session and we see no reason why licenses should be granted to applicants who are purely dealers while the subject is under consideration by the law makers. The consideration of these applications is therefore continued until such date as may be hereafter fixed after we have been advised of the action taken by the Legislature.

Now, March 3, 1923, the application of DuBois Brewing Company and of DuBois Products and Cold Storage Company are granted, with rule in each case to show cause why order now made should not be revoked, returnable first Monday of April 1923.

By the Court.

SINGLETON BELL P.
The granting of a license to the DuBois Brewing Company at this time naturally gives rise to a great deal of speculation, and, we must confess sort of "stumps us" or "has us guessing", as it were, a privilege we newspaper fellows arrogate to ourselves. In passing upon the retail licenses Judge Bell makes no final decision upon them pending the action of the legislature. It is conceded that Governor Pritchard's dry bill which aims to repeal the Brooks license law and its unholy twin, the Woner Act will pass undoubtedly, which will do away with all license law, so the retailer can easily get a line on what's going to happen to him, and then if there is nobody licensed to sell beverages, allowable under the Volstead Act, with an alcoholic content of less than one-half of one per cent, what is the DuBois Brewing Company going to do with the product manufactured under its license. Can they sell it or will the stockholders have to drink it? Or will the repealing of the Brooks and Woner laws throw down the bars, as some have feared, and allow the sale of beer or geographical beer at every drug store, corner grocery or other shop which cares to engage in such trade interesting possibilities at least.

ODDS AND ENDS
AND THINGS

By J. D. G.

Much of the domestic unhappiness of the country could be put to sleep forever if husbands and wives would observe ten commandments laid down for them by Leonard McGee, attorney-in-chief of New York's Legal Aid Society, official of that organization think.

The commandments for wives, made public recently and following those for husbands after several weeks, are easy suggestions culled from Mr. McGee's fifteen years of experience with cases of divorce, separation and annulment coming before the society.

Here they are in a nutshell:
"Do not be extravagant."
"Keep your home clean."

"Do not permit your person to become unattractive."

"Do not resent reasonable discipline of children by their father."

"Do not spend too much time with your mother."

"Do not accept advice from relatives and neighbors."

"Do not disparage your husband."

"Smile. Be attentive in little things."

"Be tactful and feminine."

"Do not receive attentions from other men."

"Simple enough for any woman to know ahead," Mr. McGee commented when called at his office.

The Ten For Men.

And for men, these gleaned likewise from experience:

"Be generous."

"Do not interfere in the management of domestic affairs."

"Be cheerful, even though sometimes it hurts."

"Be considerate."

"Make love to your wife; continue to be her sweetheart."

"Do not sulk."

"Establish your own home, remote from those of relatives."

"Do not keep a lodger."

"Cultivate neatness and personal cleanliness."

"Be kind and just to your children."

"They might help the divorce court decide up to it is way if given a general whipping enough may be cured by application of X-rays, in the opinion of Boston physicians. Dr. Henry L. Bowditch and Dr. Edwin T. Wyman have discovered that the disease which previously has baffled medical treatment, is susceptible to the X-ray.

Their experiments have not been advanced sufficiently to warrant announcement that a cure has been found, it was said, and details of the treatment are being withheld for the present, but it is planned to hold a clinic soon.

Intelligent tests given to 3,333 pupils in senior classes of high schools of dear old educated "Bawston" town, show that 44 per cent of the boys and nearly 60 per cent of the girls are poor college material, a commission on higher education reports.

It was found psychological ratings of girls were consistently lower than those of boys. The commission found, however, it is probable that more girls of a given mental ability will succeed in school and in college than will boys of the same ability, because the former are more serious in their studies.

A reduction totaling $657,381,862 has been made in the national debt in the last twelve months, according to an official statement of the Treasury Department dealing with public finances, at the opening of business February 1.

The gross debt, funded and floating on that date amounted to $22,731,162,375, as compared with a total of $23,388,544,237 on the corresponding day of 1922.

The total of curtailments of the debt for the last twelve months represents a payment in the principal of the national debt of approximately $6.20 on behalf of every resident of the United States. This is slightly less than one-sixth of the collections of revenue per capita during the same period. Approximately $38 for each resident of the country now is going into the government's pocketbook each year from tax collections and other sources of revenue.

President Harding says it will take twenty years to make this really a dry nation. Arthur Brisbane, himself somewhat of a dry advocate, offers the following comment on prohibition and its possible effect or result:

Dr. Leon Bernard, of France, guest of the Rockefeller in America, marvels at our health work in this country, and declares the adoption of prohibition "marks us as a great people." That's encouraging, but of course it's all an experiment, thus far. Nobody knows how much more or less efficient a white race will be after a few generations of cold water. We do know that some water-drinking races, like the hundreds of millions in India, have not been successful. A handful of beer-drinking Englishmen, thousands of miles away, govern them easily. But water may have nothing to do with that, it may be vegetarianism, or something else.

We know also that when Mohammed put all his people on the water wagon, they did wonders for a while, nearly conquered the whole earth. Then they stopped, and since then they haven't done anything, until the other day when Kemal Pasha surprised the Allies. But Kemal is only a recent Mohammedan convert, and perhaps he isn't a teetotaler.

GVERNOR OPPOSES BACKWARD STEPS IN PUBLIC SCHOOL

Harrisburg, March 5.—Governor E. H. B. today stated that he could not favor an abridgement of the Education Act that might result in any backward steps in the present school system.

The current conflict of opinion concerning the estimates of school needs in the next two years, which caused the Governor to criticize Superintendent of Public Instruction Thomas E. Hagan for failing promptly to report to him on increased payments made by the schools will not cause any essential reduction in state aid to school districts.

ADFORD CHILD SLAYER FINALLY SENT TO CHAIR

Lockview, Pa., March 5.—Floyd Smith, convicted of the murder of the three-week-old daughter of his wife, was in the electric chair this morning after having made many vain appeals for his life. Twice he made appeals for a new trial, his case was up before the Board of Pardons four times, and a times he was reprieved by the governor.

A crime was committed on April 1920, when the body of his illegitimate child was found under a tree. Smith explained that he intended to abandon the child, taking it to his arm; was attacked by a dog and caused him to fall and set its life. He left it where he

Mrs. McCauley asked that Undertaker Fred B. Leavy be notified to have the remains brought to Clearfield and interred in Hillcrest cemetery.

Undertaker Leavy got in touch with the authorities at the institution and found that the body had been turned over to the State Anatomical Board and after much correspondence with Dr. A. roads, with a few exceptions. Union labor joined forces with the bituminous operators who were fighting the "assigned car" rules, and contended for a "square turn" among coal operators similar to the "square turn" among the men in the mines. Labor organizations offered testimony in support of their position.

The hearings were concluded last Friday after two days of oral argument before the entire Interstate Commerce Commission. The contending interests were represented at the final argument by the following participants: The railroads by R. V. Fletcher, Chicago, W. S. Bronson, Richmond, Va., and August C. TRINITY CHURCH EVENTS

Yesterday was a goodly day throughout for the people that make Trinity their church home. Bible school had an attendance of 410, with an offering of $186.88, which closed out the Missionary year. The address of Superintendent Powell on Korea and Dr. Henry Gearhart Appenzeller, the founder of that developing work, who was a classmate of Trinity's pastor, was inspiring.

The morning sermon was an exposition of John 14: 1, which many heard. Two persons were admitted to membership. The evening discourse was a study of Zachariah, who was presented in far different analysis of character and conduct from the traditional view. He was portrayed as a very big man despite the smallness of his stature. Strangers were noted from distant places in and beyond the state, in every service.

Excellent music was enjoyed by the congregation. Chorus and individual parts were helpfully sung.

This week's events: Wednesday evening's midweek meeting, followed by adjourned quarterly conference, special matters,—report on finances completing list of officers and Committees, selection of representative to Boy's Conference and County Federation of Churches. Thursday evening, parsonage, Woman's Foreign auxiliary Miss Clara Shaw and her group in charge. Next Sunday Communion with baptism, reception of members. A preaching Sunday, 18, pastor at Conference.

Curwensville's Own Column

An exceedingly sad and distressing accident occurred at the Danver col mine, near Grampian, last Friday afternoon, by which Rollie Shaffer, a miner, lost his life. Mr. Shaffer was an inexperienced miner and had only worked in the bank about three days. His death was instantaneous, a large rock from the roof falling on him, crushing the body down over a car rim and breaking his neck. Other cuts and lacerations were also found on the body. Funeral Director Duverspike brought the mangled remains to his undertaking rooms and prepared them for burial. He was a son of Edward Shaffer, and aged about 32 years, and is survived by one sister and three brothers, besides the father, who was summoned from Loraine, Ohio, and immediately made the proper arrangements for the funeral. The body was taken to a cemetery near Troutville today and interred in a plot alongside that of his mother, who preceded him a number of years ago. Deceased was a veteran of the world war, and had been severely wounded by an iron pin or bar shot through his leg, causing him to walk a trifle lame since the time of the wound. Rollie Shaffer was well and favorably known to many Curwensville people as an honest and exemplary young man. By his industry and frugality, he had succeeded in accumulating a large sum of money, and it is said that almost a thousand dollars was found in his clothing at the time of

Mrs. Lex P. Caldwell died at her home on Bloomingtown avenue, South Side, Saturday evening, after an illness lasting practically since February 22nd, at which time a little daughter was born. Many of her neighbors and friends did not know she was really ill and the announcement of her death on Sunday morning came as a shock to them. Deceased's maiden name was Mary Elizabeth Palmer, and she was born in London, England, November 20th, 1872. She was united in matrimony to Lex P. Caldwell, youngest son of the late Isaac Caldwell, September 8th, 1896. Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITHOUT the blister. You just apply it with the fingers. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then comes a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frostbitten feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu." 35c and 65c, jars and tubes.

You will be amazed to see how the use of "Bull" Durham will outdown the cost of your smoking.

How is it possible to give you quality at the low cost of 10 cents for 50 cigarettes?

Here's one reason: The government tax alone on 50 machine-made cigarettes is 15 cents—5 CENTS MORE THAN THE COST OF 50 "BULL" DURHAM CIGARETTES TO YOU!

The average smoker saves $1 to $1.50 a week by "rolling his own" from "Bull"—or from $52 to $78 a year. This makes quite a Christmas fund—or pays for a fine trip.

There really is no smoke in the world so altogether satisfactory.

3 KEYSTONE STATE MEN CALLED TO HIGH DIPLOMATIC POSTS

Cyrus Woods Is Moved
from Spain to Japan,
Moore to Spain and I.
B. Laughlin to Greece.

ALL ARE ABLE MEN

Washington, March 3.—Cyrus E. Woods, of Pennsylvania, now ambassador to Spain, was nominated by President Harding today to be ambassador to Japan, succeeding Charles B. Warren, who recently resigned.

Alexander P. Moore, Pittsburgh publisher, was nominated to be ambassador to Spain to succeed Mr. Woods.

Irwin B. Laughlin, of Pittsburgh, is to be appointed minister to Greece if the United States recognizes the present government.

It was announced yesterday at the White House that an inquiry had gone forward to Tokio regarding the acceptability of the man selected to take the place of Ambassador Warren. It was indicated today, however, that a reply had not been received.

Mr. Woods has been ambassador at Madrid since 1921, he resigned as secretary of state of Pennsylvania to take the post. Some years before he had served as minister to Portugal.

The selection of Mr. Moore by the president was a personal matter, Mr. Moore and his wife, the late Lilian Russell, were close friends of President and Mrs. Harding.

The endorsement of the Pennsylvania senators was not sought in Mr. Moore's behalf, nor had he been recommended by them. Mr. Moore has been very well known in official circles here ever since the beginning of the present administration. He has never held public office, nor was it supposed that he desired it. Recently, however, his newspaper in Pittsburgh was sold to a combination of other newspapers and immediately discontinued. This left Mr. Moore at liberty.

It was recently announced that Mr. Moore would make an extended tour of Europe with Senator Johnson, of California, but his assumption of diplomatic duties will probably interfere with that program.

Mr. Woods was a very close friend of the late Senators Penrose and Knox, and has been prominent in Pennsylvania politics for a number of years. At one time he was minister to Portugal.
